

Acknowledgements

Work on this thesis would not have been possible without encouragement and support from many people. The greatest thanks go to my supervisor Prof. Claire Hsun-huei Chang. She opened the window to the world of Corpus Linguistics for me. Under her intellectual guidance, I found the passion of doing academic research and the courage of facing the ups and downs in the process. I have enjoyed every moment of the insightful discussion with her. I am also grateful to the committee members, Prof. Shu-hui Chen and Prof. Chiung-chih Huang, who have provided me many inspiring ideas and helpful advices.

I would like to thank all the friends who have been of invaluable assistance when I hit a bottleneck during the period of completing this paper. My fellow classmates at NCCU have been the source of intellectual stimulation. Their warm friendship serves as the harbor for me to rest. I am also enormously indebted to many friends who have offered me great help, both materially and psychologically. Wen-ji, thanks for purchasing the valuable Corpus Package for me; Yu-ti, Danna and Yu-wen, thank you for sharing your experiences and opinions with me.

My deepest gratitude is sent to my family for their warm support, which brings belief and hope into my life. To My beloved parents, who have been so caring and supportive to me all the time. And to my sisters and brother, whose love and patience have backed me up to keep moving on. Last but not least, I will give my heartfelt gratitude to my beloved soul-mate, Tz-ing Lo, for his never-ending encouragement and unfailing love.

To all those people, this thesis is dedicated.
