Abstract

Modeling a testlet with a probability structure, we investigate the computational formulas of the difficulty index and the discrimination index. Data taken from the English test items of the second basic competence test for junior high school students in 2007 are used for empirical verification and the result is compared with that obtained by the traditional method.

keyword：classical test theory, testlet, difficulty index, discrimination index