For the past two and a half years, many had asked me why I do my graduate education in Taiwan; indeed, up to this point, I haven't come up with a clue even for myself. Regardless of the reason why, the past two and a half years in Taiwan had been a really meaningful experience to me. Now, with this thesis marks the end of my journey in Taiwan, I would like to express my appreciation to all the people who helped me and pull me through for the past two and a half years.

First I would like to express my sincere gratitude to my thesis supervisor Professor Wang Tai-li for her guidance, encouragement, and inspiration in making this thesis possible. I am very thankful for her in giving me the opportunity to work with her and Professor Lo Wen-hui in the Foreign News Project of the NCCU Top University Program. I am also very thankful to Professor Li Mei-hua and Professor Leonard Chu for their valuable comments and suggestions upon this thesis.

I would also like to express my appreciation to Professor Peng, Professor Su, Professor Wu, Professor Ke, Professor Chu from the Department of Journalism and Professor Lan from the Ethnology for their knowledgeable and inspirational instruction for the past two and a half years.

I am also very grateful for all my classmates in giving a foreigner such warm and loving environment. Special thanks to Jill, Karmen, and Paylin for their companionship and support for the past two and a half years and the memories that I will cherish for the rest of my lifetime. Good luck to you all.

Last but not least, I would also like to thank my family for their unconditional love and support, and tolerate with me for my sometime inconsiderate and selfish behaviours. Thanks for those who once despise me so I can grow and become strong.
